Ambassador Joseph del Mar Yap on Strengthening Special Bonds of Friendship

The Ambassador of the Philippine Embassy to Singapore tells Nomita Dhar Publisher and Editor-in-Chief of IN Diplomacy he felt privileged and honoured to have been part of the 50th Year anniversary celebrations of diplomatic ties with Singapore in 2019 and helped make an impact strengthening bilateral ties in these past few years

CONGRATULATIONS on the recently concluded elections and selection of Ferdinand Marcos Jr as the President -elect. This national day, The Philippines (PH) has a lot to celebrate; please share with us the role your Embassy played in helping the Filipino community in Singapore (SG) to exercise their vote smoothly.

The month-long Philippine Overseas Voting (from 10th April to 9th May 2022) saw a total of 52,908 voters, out of 84,877 registered Filipino voters participating in SG. That translates to a voter turnout rate of 62.33% which is among the highest in the Asia-Pacific region. The Philippine Embassy ensured a safe, orderly and efficient conduct of overseas voting in SG by including the following measures:

- Development of its own online pre-verification system;
- Launch of a proactive, sustained election information drive;
- Coordination with relevant Singapore government authorities such as the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, Singapore Police Force, Maritime and Port Authority, and Land Transport Authority;
- Effective crowd management strategies with the support of volunteers from the Filipino community; and
- Strict implementation of health and safety protocols.

Please share some of the highlights of activities held to commemorate 50 years of bilateral ties between Singapore and Philippines?

It was my privilege and honour to be serving as the PH Ambassador to Singapore during the celebrations of our 50th Anniversary of the establishment of diplomatic relations in 2019. The series of 28 commemorative events spread throughout the year was capped with the State Visit of her Excellency President Halimah Yacob to the PH in September 2019. One of the most meaningful celebratory events was the restoration of the art work on the Alkaff Bridge, which was a gift of the late Filipina Artist Pacita Abad to the people of Singapore.

In 2004, while Pacita was on an art residency at the Singapore Tyler Print Institute she was able to obtain permission to transform the bridge from a plain, gray, functional piece of infrastructure into an art work, brought to life by her signature palette of vibrant hues and abstract form. Unfortunately by 2019, the art work had deteriorated due to its constant exposure to the elements. The PH Embassy, together with the SG Ministry of Foreign Affairs, made a decision, and were able to obtain the necessary governmental approvals, to restore the art work.

Philippines Ambassador Joseph del Mar Yap at one of the 28 events that commemorated the 50th Anniversary

A committee chaired by Ambassador-at-large Tommy Koh and co-chaired by former PH Secretary of Finance Jose Isidro "Lito" Camacho was formed to raise the necessary funding for the project. This was achieved in a very short time as many corporations and individuals quickly stepped up to support the very worthwhile undertaking.

I am particularly proud of this project because the bridge, brightly painted in the vibrant hues and dynamic shapes favoured by Pacita Abad, truly symbolizes the strong and energetic bonds of friendship and linkage between our two countries and our two peoples.

Another wonderful project that highlighted the special bonds of friendship between the PH and SG is the loan of a pair of critically endangered Philippine Eagles to the Wildlife Reserves Singapore, the agency running the Singapore Bird Park. SG is the only country that the PH has entered into such a loan agreement for these National Birds.

What is the balance of trade between SG and PH? Where do you see trends of potential and growth?

In 2021, SG ranked as the PH's 6th major trading partner (out of 223), 5th export market (out of 205), and 6th import supplier (out of 210).

PH exports to SG increased by 11.15% from US$3.77 B in 2020 to US$4.20 B in 2021. This may be generally attributed to the export of copper ores and concentrates, amounting to US$75.79 M from zero value in 2020, and increase in the outward shipment of the following products:

- (a) Semiconductor devices manufactured from materials on consignment basis (↑17.47%)
- (b) Digital monolithic integrated circuits (↑9.71%)
- (c) Other fixed capacitors, not elsewhere specified (n.e.s.) (↑86.07%)
- (d) Storage units (↑18.33%)

Likewise, PH imports from SG expanded by 23.58% from US$5.62 B in 2020 to US$6.95 B in 2021. This could be attributed to the increase in the inward shipment of the following products:

- (a) Light petroleum oils and preparations thereof (↑119.07%)
- (b) Transmission apparatus incorporating reception apparatus (↑74.68%)
- (c) Petroleum oils and oils obtained from bituminous minerals, other than light, n.e.s. (↑31.36%)
- (d) Other preparations not elsewhere specified or included (↑24.57%)
- (e) Digital monolithic integrated circuits (↑12.24%).

In 2021, SG is also ranked as the top source of approved foreign direct investment at $1.6B, from fourth place at $0.2B in 2020.

How has the interest of SG businesses been towards entering the PH market? Are there any new entrants and what sectors are showing an upswing?

tries with approved investments include ICT, manufacturing, support services, and electricity and gas.

There are several big-ticket investments that poured into the PH from SG in the last year. For instance, Singapore-based ST Telemedia Global Data Centres has formed an alliance with Globe Telecom—backed by the PH oldest conglomerate Ayala Corp.—to expand its footprint in the PH amid booming demand for server space from e-commerce and other digital platforms. SG company SpaceDC is set to build a 72MW facility, the largest hyperscale data center in the Philippines. Most recently, the Provincial Government of Batangas, Department of Trade and Industry (DTI), Philippines, and YCH Group, one of Asia's leading integrated logistics and supply chain providers signed an MoU, to formalise the joint interest to co-develop smart logistics infrastructure in enhancing connectivity in ASEAN.

As SG and other ASEAN countries open up again, what are the steps being taken to attract them to visit your country?

PH is among several ASEAN countries that have eased border restrictions for travelers

Which are the areas in which Singapore and The Philippines should work to improve people to people ties?

With the relaxation of safety measures and resumption of in-person activities in both the PH and SG, we can now look forward to further deepening the friendship and cooperation of both our countries and their peoples. One way to achieve this is through the conduct of sustained, impactful cultural activities which will highlight aspects of our societies and cultures, for our better appreciation. These activities will foster national pride and patriotism and will elevate our relationship to a higher point. In 2019, when we celebrated the 50 year anniversary of our bilateral relations, we had around 28 activities for the entire year which garnered overwhelming support from both the Filipinos and SG in the country.

SG serves as a second home to some 200,000 Filipino nationals employed in various fields, contributing significantly to the economic development of both countries. We are proud of our Filipino health-care professionals in SG, who are serving at the frontlines of the battle against the pandemic in multiple Singaporean hospitals and health facilities.

culminated last year in the launch of the Philippine Skills Framework (PSF), an initiative among the government, industry, and the academe for worker skills development. The interagency initiative uses the SkillsFuture Singapore framework as a reference in developing skills for local industry and creating a common skills reference to match employers and workers.

PH and SG also signed the MoU on Scientific and Technological Cooperation through the Department of Science and Technology (DOST) and the Singapore Cooperation Enterprise (SCE) on 25th October 2021. The initial fields of cooperation that the parties have identified under the MoU are water and waste management, food safety and security, digital government transformation, and aquaculture, which are also among the key action points of the 5th Informal Consultations on the Philippines-Singapore Action Plan held last 14th July 2021. The MoU likewise aims to collaborate with the private sector for a more inclusive and successful program conceptualization and implementation. During my term, continued conversations have been going to a positive direction, with more emphasis on food security, particularly increasing food to the country. Beginning 30th May 2022, fully-vaccinated travellers may enter sans a pre-departure COVID test, and without having to serve quarantine in the country.

PH also continues to ramp up its major infrastructure projects and to sustain its reform momentum through the Build Build Build Program. Said programme is one of the keys in boosting tourism activities in the Philippines. According to our Department of Tourism (DOT) Secretary, the PH is blessed with a highly diverse array of tourist attractions and spots. But without the necessary infrastructure, many of these locations would be out of reach to our travelers. These infrastructure projects include airports, seaports, bridges, thousands of kilometers of roads that have been built or upgraded to ensure a safe, convenient and fun experience for our tourists.

To attract more tourists to the country, the DOT is also developing sustainable tourism models through extensive waste management systems, road connections, and environmental rehabilitation programs. Successful examples include the closure and rehabilitation of Boracay Island and improving water quality and litter disposal in the regions of Panglao, El Nido, Siargao, and Manila Bay.

SG has also been the PHs' reliable and steadfast partner in developing our human resources, which is a vital component of our country's economic development. We appreciate how SG has allocated more training slots that allowed more PH officials and civil servants to participate in training and capacity-building programs under the Singapore Cooperation Program. We are also grateful for the unwavering support of the Temasek Foundation which sponsors technical and vocational education and training programs.

There are many significant MOUs that are in place between our two countries, during your term. Which one do you think is bearing best results? Could you share some success stories?

Back in 2019, the Department of Trade and Industry (DTI) and the Technical Education and Skills Development Authority (TESDA) signed a MOU with SkillsFuture Singapore to cooperate on human capital development as well as the reskilling and skills upgrading of workforce. The PH, through this MOU, sought to partner with the Singaporean government and training institutions in order to improve the preparedness of the Filipinos for the needs of industry and the demands of the global market, particularly in the Fourth Industrial Revolution. This exports (such as poultry, egg, fruits and vegetables) to SG, government e-services, and enhancing digital capabilities of SMEs.

How has your experience working with SG been in the last few years? If you could replicate something back in the Philippines and vice versa, what would that be?

I have really enjoyed my years as the PH Ambassador to SG. I have made many Singaporean friends and have really come to know and understand SG and its people much better. One thing that stands out about SG is how the government always plans ahead. Very little is left to chance. Whether it's planning the water resources of the country or the plan for food resilience dubbed '30 by 30', strategic plans are laid out and then followed through. This is something that we can learn from SG.

As the world grapples with many geopolitical issues, inflation etc, what would your wish this national day be for your country and the world.

My wish on our independence day is for all of us, and for the whole world, to be able to work together to overcome these challenges together. United as one. Dividing the world into warring camps is not the solution.

Africa Day Celebrations 2022 25th May 2022

Africa is represented here by five resident missions from Angola, Egypt, Nigeria, Rwanda and South Africa

For the first time since the pandemic the African missions in Singapore were able to celebrate the 'live' event of the anniversary of the founding of the Organisation of African Unity

THE African Group in Singapore represented by H.E. Jean de Dieu Uwihanganye, the High Commissioner of Rwanda to Singapore, welcomed more over 100 guests to the African Day Celebrations at the JW Marriot Hotel on Wednesday 25th May 2022. The date commemorates the founding of the Organization of the African Union in 1963 and the African Union in 2002 and charts the progress made by the continent since then to advancing democracy, peace, stability, and socio-economic development.

High Commissioner Uwihanganye welcomed the representative of the Singapore Government Minister of State for National Development and Trade and Industry Mr Koh Poh Koon along with members of the diplomatic corps as well as many executives of major companies, numerous institutional and private investors to the event. His opening comments reflected the main sentiments of everyone there that evening: "Let me start by saying: that I am an optimist about Africa. My optimism does not imply non-awareness of the continent's challenges but stems from a conviction that the best of Africa lies ahead of us."

"Let me start by saying I'm an optimist about Africa. My optimism does not imply non-awareness of the continent's challenges but from a conviction the best of Africa lies ahead of us."

He highlighted how the numbers and statistics certainly backed this up:

- Africa's population is estimated to reach the 1.7 billion mark by 2030, making it the fastest-urbanizing region in the world. The continent at that time will have the highest number of youth in the world – all brimming with ideas, creativity and skills, which will make the continent the workshop of choice in the world

Live performances and a fashion show capped the festivities of the evening

- It is no coincidence that Africa's recent growth, epitomized by the Africa rising label, was due to increased levels of foreign direct investment. Improvements in fiscal policies, governance and regulatory frameworks and a move to diversify economies away from Africa's traditional commodities-based economies presented greater opportunities for foreign investors

- The African market is open for investment in all sectors of interest, taking into account the advantages derived from its privileged geographical location, its connectivity between countries, like sea, rail, road, and an acceptable telecommunications service

- Africa has fertile land, abundant water resources and a wide range of mineral resources that are still unexploited. More precisely, Africa has 65% of the uncultivated arable land left to feed the world.

Investment Focus

The High Commissioner also touched on how the African market is open for investment in all sectors of interest; many natural resources including fertile land, water and a wide range of mineral resources that are still unexploited; how many entrepreneurs have been making successful private investments in Africa as the world is shifting investment focus to Africa. This included a growing number of Singaporean companies. Currently over 60 Singaporean companies are operating in more than 50 countries in Africa, involved in projects across a wide variety of sectors such as oil & gas, food industry, information technology and others, and more are looking to expand their operations as the continent continues to open its doors to digitalization, economic integration and global trade.

The final part of his speech focussed on the African Continental Free Trade Area, which is one of the flagship projects of the African Union (AU), established in 2018 to create a single market covering trade in goods and services. The agreement connects 1.3 billion people across the continent with a combined GDP estimated at US$3.4 trillion.

Launch of the Portugese Association 2022 5th May 2022

THE Portuguese speaking community as well as friends of Portugal here can now come together at the first Portugese Association (Singapore) which was officially launched on 5th May 2022 at The Projector theatre. On stage to welcome everyone invited to the event were special guests the Ambassador of Portugal H.E. Mario Miranda Duarte and Singapore's Minister for Transport and in Charge of Trade Relations S Iswaran. The date of the event also nicely coincided with World Portuguese Language Day proclaimed by UNESCO in 2019. Its early days yet but President of the association Mr Nuno Pereira said there is already a programme of regular activities for kids and families drawn up and the association is now waiting for more members to sign up. The initial impetus for creating the association, said Nuno, came from parents who wanted to have their children develop their proficiency in the language and at the same time impart Portugese history and culture. It is now organising events that involve musical performances and outings. For more info: www.portugeseassociationsg.com

The anniversary of the UN Convention on the Law of the Sea (UNCLOS) is especially crucial for small island states like Singapore and was pivotal for multilateralism and the rule of law in the governance of the sea

MINISTER for Foreign Affairs Dr Vivian Balakrishnan spoke at a high-level meeting of the United Nations General Assembly (UNGA) to commemorate the 40th anniversary of the adoption of UN Convention on the Law of the Sea (UNCLOS). This meeting was convened by the President of the 76th Session of the UNGA (PGA) His Excellency Abdulla Shahid.

The meeting underscored the critical importance of UNCLOS which provides a universal legal framework on the governance of the oceans. When UNCLOS was adopted forty years ago, the international community committed itself to the rule of law in the oceans. The institutions created by UNCLOS have adapted to new challenges and made critical contributions to global peace and security. UNCLOS has assumed greater relevance given challenges such as the exponential growth of maritime shipping and the impact of climate change on the oceans.

In his remarks, Minister Balakrishnan emphasised that UNCLOS is especially crucial for Singapore as a small island state whose history, people and economy are intricately intertwined with the seas. Singapore is proud to have contributed to the adoption of UNCLOS in 1982 as Ambassador-at-Large Tommy Koh served as President of the Third UN Conference on the Law of the Sea. At PGA Shahid's invitation, Ambassador Koh delivered a keynote address on the significance of UNCLOS.

Singapore's Ambassador-at-Large Prof Tommy Koh's also presented the Keynote Address in his capacity as President of the Third UN Conference on the Law of the Sea to mark the 40th anniversary of UNCLOS.

UNCLOS is also an Environmental Treaty

"The convention imposes a clear obligation on all States to protect and preserve the marine environment. UNCLOS, I would argue, is one of our most robust environmental treaties. The convention treats the ocean space as an ecological whole and seeks to protect the oceans and the marine environment from all sources of marine pollution. I welcome the recent decision by the UN Environment Assembly to begin negotiating a new treaty on marine plastic pollution.

The convention is a living document and is able to respond to new developments and challenges. I refer to the 1995 Implementation Agreement on Highly Migratory and Straddling Fish Stocks as an example. That agreement fills a gap in the convention and contains new principles of sustainable fishery. If the current negotiations, on the conservation and sustainable use of (marine) biological diversity, in areas beyond national jurisdiction, are successfully concluded, the outcome will be embodied in a new Implementation Agreement, under the convention.

Climate change and sea level rise will impact many aspects of the law of the sea. Sea level rise poses an existential threat to many countries, especially the small island developing countries. The convention contains the legal tools for us to meet this monumental challenge, but States must act and act urgently. The Secretary-General has described the situation as a Code Red for humanity."

Above are extracts from Singapore Ambassador-at-Large Prof Tommy Koh's address at 40th UNCLOS that relate to the environment. The Ambassador was one of the pioneers who contributed to the creation of the Convention and helped steered the early negotiations which brought UNCLOS to life
